

In John Caie's poem, "The Puddock", Putin is the HERON, with the long beak and Trump, the TOAD, whose long tongue is gulping down Canada. A dictator and a wantabe, with their red ties, peas from the same pod, with oligarchs who will be well looked after. What do you think?